

The picture above depicts an ION train wrapped in Tropicana juice advertising. The wrap extends over the entire train from behind the front door and operator cockpit to the end of the train horizontally. Vertically, the wrap extends from the roof of the train to the bottom runner. This particular mock up shows most of the windows clear of wrapped advertising, with the exception of some fruit slices and bottle tops, which cover approximately one third of the total window space of the train.